

Career Councelling and Placement Cell

LBS Govt College Saraswatinagar

An Interactive session was organized on Perspectives of High Density Apple Orchard in Himalayas by the Career and Guidance Cell of the college in collaboration with NSS unit of the college on 26th November, 2018 with the objective to make the students aware of apple cultivation in hilly areas. Mr. Peter Van Arkel from Holland was the resource person of the session. He explained high density orchard system to the students. He made the students understand the concept of High Density Orchard System through power point presentation. He gave detailed information of different varieties of apples to be grown in this region. He told that in order maximize the production of a high density orchard, it is also necessary to modify the training system and pruning techniques. Students were also told about the soil testing, sun location, pesticides, fertilizers and direction suitable for the setup of the orchard. He also expressed upon the fact that along with the increased production apple grower should know about the market where they can get good price for their crop. The session was also attended by the locals of this area. The entire session was full of information. All the students actively participated in Question- Answer segment.
